Dear Kambiz,

We proudly announce our 50th website, drones.procon.org, which explores the core question "Should the United States continue its use of drone strikes abroad?" We think our pros, cons, history, photos, and videos will help people better understand this important and controversial issue.

ProCon.org has reached over 60 million online visitors since we started in July 2004. Thanks to your support our 50 websites now serve millions of people, thousands of schools, hundreds of media outlets, and dozens of governments with our unique pro and con research.

It's our December fund drive, and you'll get two emails later this month asking you to help our 501(c)(3) nonprofit public charity with a donation. You can also click here to support us now.

Today's email is to highlight our new drones website and to showcase some research updates on several other topics listed below too.

DRONES

NEW ProCon.org Website! - Should the United States continue its use of drone strikes abroad? - Our 50th website explores the pros and cons in the debate over US drone strikes. Proponents say that drones have decimated terrorist networks abroad via precise strikes with minimum civilian casualties. They contend that drones are relatively inexpensive weapons, are used under proper government oversight, and that their use helps prevent "boots on the ground" combat and makes America safer. Opponents say that drone strikes create more terrorists than they kill. They contend that drone strikes kill large numbers of civilians, violate international law, lack sufficient congressional oversight, violate the sovereignty of other nations, and make the horrors of war appear as innocuous as a video game.
