

Smart Searching On the Web

Are You Looking for Some Good Online Research Information? Try some of these links.

These Sites might give you some very helpful information on a variety of topics!

Shmoop.com This site has a weird name, but the information is interesting, well-researched, and offers different points of view.

ProCon.org Are you looking for both sides of an issue. Click here and see if your issues is present.

Google Books Try Google Books before you go out and buy a book for class - or search any further for research. If there are books for sale, keep looking and you might find that they are also free. Scroll down and check every link.

AwesomeStories.com This site has videos, documents, photos - it is just full of information. You can make an account for free.

Here are some other Search Engines that might be BETTER for RESEARCH than Google! - No Kidding!

Infotopia.info - This is really a Google search that has been filtered to take out the junk.

USA.gov - Google doesn't always bring up hits from the United States Government. If you want to search government (local, state and federal) use this search engine (YES! it is a Search Engine just like Google is)

Finding Dulcinea - Another wonderful educational Search Engine that offers an alternative to Google, Yahoo, etc. All of the information on this site is guaranteed to be reputable and legitimate.

Twurdy.com - Do you need to find information that you can understand? Try Twurdy.

Beaucoup.com Try this Web Directory for a different type of search.

DMOZ Directory This directory is edited throughout by humans and not by search engine spiders.

Infomine This is a scholarly search engine. It searches what is called the "dark Web." In other words areas of the Internet that aren't always searched by traditional search engines.