7. How do/did you use ProCon.org in your classroom or library? Details appreciated.

If you have a link to your lesson plan or reference to ProCon.org, please include it below.

I divided the class up into small groups (2-3 students). They were assigned a presidential candidate. Then, they were to chart the candidate's views on various topics. We then created a bulletin board of all the opinions and issues. That allowed the entire class to see how different candidates differed on certain issues.
