

- Home
- Calendar
- HS Renovation
- Facilities
- Faculty
- Guidance
- Health Services
- Intramural Sports
- Library
- High School PTA
- Student Life
- Sports
- Student Resources
- Summer School
- Login

Library Services • Source Documentation • Online Resources • Book Recommendations • Library FAQ • Reference Desk • Classroom Connections • Library Orientation • Library Happenings • The Teacher Page

Websites for Propaganda and War Research

Propaganda Techniques

This web site discusses various techniques that are used by propagandists and gives you examples to test your skills at detecting propaganda.

Propaganda Critic

This introduction will explain how propaganda is used and why. Additional descriptions of common propaganda techniques are provided here for your understanding.

Elements of Propaganda

This Web site discusses war, propaganda, and the media. Wars are fought on a battleground, but people at home experience conflict in their minds by means of propaganda.

Propaganda Media

"Propaganda Media" is based upon "Psychological Operations Field Manual No.33-1" published in August 1979 by Department of the Army Headquarters in Washington DC; and "Psychological Operations (PSYOP) Media Subcourse PO-0816" by The Army Institute for Professional Development, published in 1983." The Propaganda Media information is distributed into several categories: Interpersonal Communication; Audio Visual Media; Audio Media; Visual Media; and Themes.

German Posters-- Wartime Propaganda

This Web site provides posters demonstrating political propaganda. You may view and/or download these posters in order to see a large view by selecting one poster at a time. An English translation of the text is given for better understanding. This site does not endorse any political viewpoint, however these posters present a strong totalitarian viewpoint which can be considered offensive. They are provided for educational purposes.

Propaganda-- Virtual Lesson

Propaganda is everywhere. How do you recognize it? Here is a virtual lesson on the subject of propaganda. It looks at the way that art, film, and language is often distorted to sell objects and ideas.

Propaganda Posters-- United States

After entering World War I in April, 1917, the United States began producing propaganda posters. In fact, despite America's late entry into the war, it created more posters than any other single nation. At this web site, browse through forty-two pages of posters from this era.

World War I-- The Drift Towards War

Propaganda was used before the war, during the war, and during peacetime. Here you can read about how propaganda is used to influence the public.

Propaganda Postcards of the Great War

This web-site has been established to provide a tool to students, researchers and postcard collectors with an interest in the period of World War One in general or "Great War" propaganda in particular.

Changing Minds.org

Five main areas of ChangingMinds.org allow you to learn all about the various ways that people can change other people's minds. You can search through each of the five areas on your own or you can use the table of contents to navigate your way through information on disciplines, techniques, principles, explanations, and even theories.

Pros and Cons for the War on Iraq

The sites here cover the war against Iraq from all angles. By looking at the information from both pro and anti-war viewpoints, you will be able to make a better informed decision about what you personally think about the war.

U.S.-Iraq ProCon.org

This site presents in a simple, nonpartisan pro-con format, responses to the core question, "Should the U.S. have attacked Iraq?"

The Philosophy of War

Examining war begins with very general questions such as What is War? How can it be defined? Is it right to wage war? etc.

The Philosophy of War from American Chronicle

Another debate to view