Opposing Views is a brand-new site that highlights key questions (political, scientific, etc). It then, in a fairly succinct "bullet" format, has an "expert" share pro and con arguments. Users of the site can also leave their own comments.

The language and lay-out of the site is fairly accessible to Intermediate English Language Learners. There's also another similar site called ProCon that is not quite as accessible.

I could see having my students use this site as a resource for their writing a persuasive essay, which is why I'm putting the link on my website under Persuasive Essay.

Hello there! If you are new here, you might want to subscribe to the RSS feed for updates on this topic.
