ST. PAUL (WCCO) — For the second time in two days, a Minnesota legislative committee on Wednesday approved a bill to allow desperately ill patients to smoke marijuana to ease their pain. And although medical marijuana is still expected to be on a path to approval, it is still a long and uncertain one.

The bill would allow patients to sue the claims against medical marijuana. The chemical found in marijuana can cause symptoms of serious and terminal illness. In Jordan, Minn., a woman watched her daughter die after suffering so terribly from cancer pain that she had to get marijuana illegally. She dared to get arrested for it.
